1. Introduction

1.1 Citation styles

These are the different citation styles for author-year.

The standard `\cite` command produces the following output: Clarke 1990.

The `\textcite` command produces the following output: Clarke \(1990\).

The `\parencite` command produces the following output: (Clarke 1990).

The `\footcite` command produces a footnote citation<sup>1</sup>.

1.2 Figures

Always prefer to float figures to the top of the page using the [t] option in the figure environment.

1.3 Tables

Use vertical lines sparingly in tables. They're unnecessary bloat. Write the code for tables in a separate tex file, and include it in when required. Also preferably use sans serif font for tables (because of their information density) using `sffamily` in table definition.
